"Trick or treat?"
PIC•COLLAGE

"I must have had a good time at the party last night. Three fellows have called up to apologize so far this morning."

Green777

"My husband is on the way up, darling. Do you know how to sell Fuller Brushes or something . . .?"

Green777

THE VARGAS GIRL

"Lord Crumley says he has an excellent position for me."

Green777

*"I'm hurt, darling —
you haven't even noticed I'm wearing the new cuff links you gave me."*

Green777
MESHOK

"I could describe it better if my arms were longer."

Green777

"Now, isn't that better exercise than jogging, Mr. Baxter?"

Green777
мешок

VARGAS GIRL

"Darling, how about supplying a little shade?"

Green777

"You know, Captain, before you invited me on this cruise I really had no idea what the first mate was supposed to do."

Мешок
Green777

*"It's amazing—
before I put on my glasses, everything looked soft."*

Green777
Meshok

"You've heard of body language? Well, I'm a very outspoken person."

Green777

"I'm so sorry you misunderstood me, Mr. Danforth. I said I was inscrutable."

Green777

"If there's anything I love as much as wearing toreador pants, it's hearing them."

Green777

"Male supremacy is all right—but I favor a different position."

Green777

"How thoughtful of him—
an engraved proposition!"

Green777

VARGAS GIRL

"Of course, there are certain kinds of inflation that I don't mind at all."

Green777

"Excuse me while I do my diary, Mr. Barkus . . . or will there be something else to write about?"

Green777

THE VARGAS GIRL

"Well, you didn't pin me, but you certainly piled up a lot of riding time."

Green777

"Darling, it's my hat I want your opinion on."

VARGAS GIRL

"Since I've been wearing copper bracelets, I feel much better—don't you think so, Mr. Hawkins?"

Green777

"You can afford to go 'Ho, ho, ho';
yours is a pillow!"

THE VARGAS GIRL

meшok
Green777

BREAKING UP IS HARD TO DO

but now that ma bell has been tolled off, you're in for some ring-a-ding surprises

modern living By DANNY GOODMAN

YOU WEREN'T ALONE if you didn't fully understand what all the fuss was about last January when the monolithic AT&T cut loose its local Bell phone companies—the ones that send you your bill each month. In all likelihood, the only differences you've noticed are that you're writing checks to a new company name and your monthly telephone bill is even more undecipherable than it was before. But one change for the good is that competition for selling you telephone equipment has opened wide. To distinguish their products from others, telephone manufacturers are producing

"Go ahead, Mr. Smith. Reach out and touch something."

The original danMark phone is permanently displayed in New York's Museum of Modern Art; the danMark 2 should be in your home or office. Sleek outside, it's all slick technology inside, including a speaker, auto dial and redial, plus a privacy switch, by GNT Automatic, $199.

With its brushed-aluminum dialing surface and gun-metal base, the Comdial 0020 is a high-tech one-piece phone that looks like it belongs in a Star Wars sequel; features include a HOLD button with LED indicator and an electric ringer with a control switch, $59.95, in tone dial only.

PHOTOGRAPHY BY CHARLES SHOTWELL

Green777

"At this Fourth of July picnic, I'm providing the fireworks."

Green777

THE VARGAS GIRL

"I told him my heart wasn't in it, but he settled for the rest."

Green777

"That was what I call my hat trick, darling."

"This year I've decided to give something that will eliminate all the tiresome shopping."

Green777

"Mr. Wilson, I think you've discovered a delightful way to bridge the generation gap."

Green777

"The amazing thing about it is that one size fits all."

THE VARGAS GIRL

Green777

THE VARGAS GIRL

"Now, darling, it's time for you to do your exercise."

Meшok
Green777

"There's one thing I hate about sex . . . thank goodness I can't remember what it is."

THE VARGAS GIRL

Green777

*"Mother was so pleased
when she learned Mr. Hefner would only be using my face
on the cover of* PLAYBOY."

"I'm getting tired of making passes— I think it's time for the Moment of Truth . . ."

Meshok
Green777

"Sorry I'm late. Did I hold up the game?"

THE VARGAS GIRL

"There's nothing like this exercise for developing the thighs . . . well, almost nothing."

Green777

"... And I hereby resolve to be a good girl
this coming year —
starting first thing
tomorrow morning!"

Green777

"Well, doctor, aren't you glad that one of us still makes house calls?"

THE VARGAS GIRL

Green777

"So you're from the Bureau of Indian Affairs?"

Green777

"When you advertised for a girl Friday, Mr. Baxter, I didn't realize that included Saturday and Sunday."

"Doesn't this look like a nice spot for a picnic, Mr. Morton?"

Green777

"What sort of peace did you have in mind, Mr. Smith?"

Green777

"Well, my boss said that if I didn't like working under him, I should look for another position."

Green777

"You're really forgetful, darling—that's the third time this afternoon you've covered me with suntan lotion."

Green777

"Do you think this cigar makes me look too masculine, darling?"

Green777

*"I never go out
with married men,
so won't you please come in?"*

Green777

"I'm not afraid of getting burned—are you?!"

Green777

Green777

"Well, that was certainly an interesting variation on mouth-to-mouth resuscitation."

"Well, if you're afraid you'll hate yourself in the morning, Mr. Thornton, we can always sleep till noon."

Green777

"Mother was so pleased
when she learned Mr. Hefner
would only be using my face
on the cover of PLAYBOY."

Green777

"Well, you know what they say, Mr. Dinkler: If we don't go to bed, Santa will never arrive."

Green777

"I asked my hairdresser to make me look like Twiggy, but he put the part on the wrong side."

Green777

"Now I'll show you what I mean by a garden party."

Green777

"The only way to tell
if they're real is to bite them, Mr. Hancock."

"No, darling, I don't want to overexpose myself the first day."

Green777

"He tried everything—flowers, jewelry, candy, furs—and they all worked."

Green777

"I've always heard it was bad luck to open an umbrella indoors—but nobody ever said anything about a raincoat."

Green777

"I certainly enjoyed the Valentine ball, Mr. Prentiss, and the dance was fun, too."

Green777

". . . and then he said that Niagara Falls is an extremely important source of hydroelectric power and that it consists of two cataracts — Horseshoe Fall, which is 160 feet high and 2600 feet across, and American Fall, which is 167 feet high and 1000 feet across — and they are separated by Goat Island, and over 212,000 cubic feet of water pass over the Falls every second, and then I left for Reno . . ."

Green777

"Operator? Give me a wrong number."

*"I don't smoke or drink,
Mr. Walker—and two out of three isn't bad."*

Green777

"I got my mink the same way minks do."

Green777

"I don't mind if a man
loves me and leaves me—as long as he leaves me enough."

Green777

"Well, doctor, aren't you glad that one of us still makes house calls?"

THE VARGAS GIRL

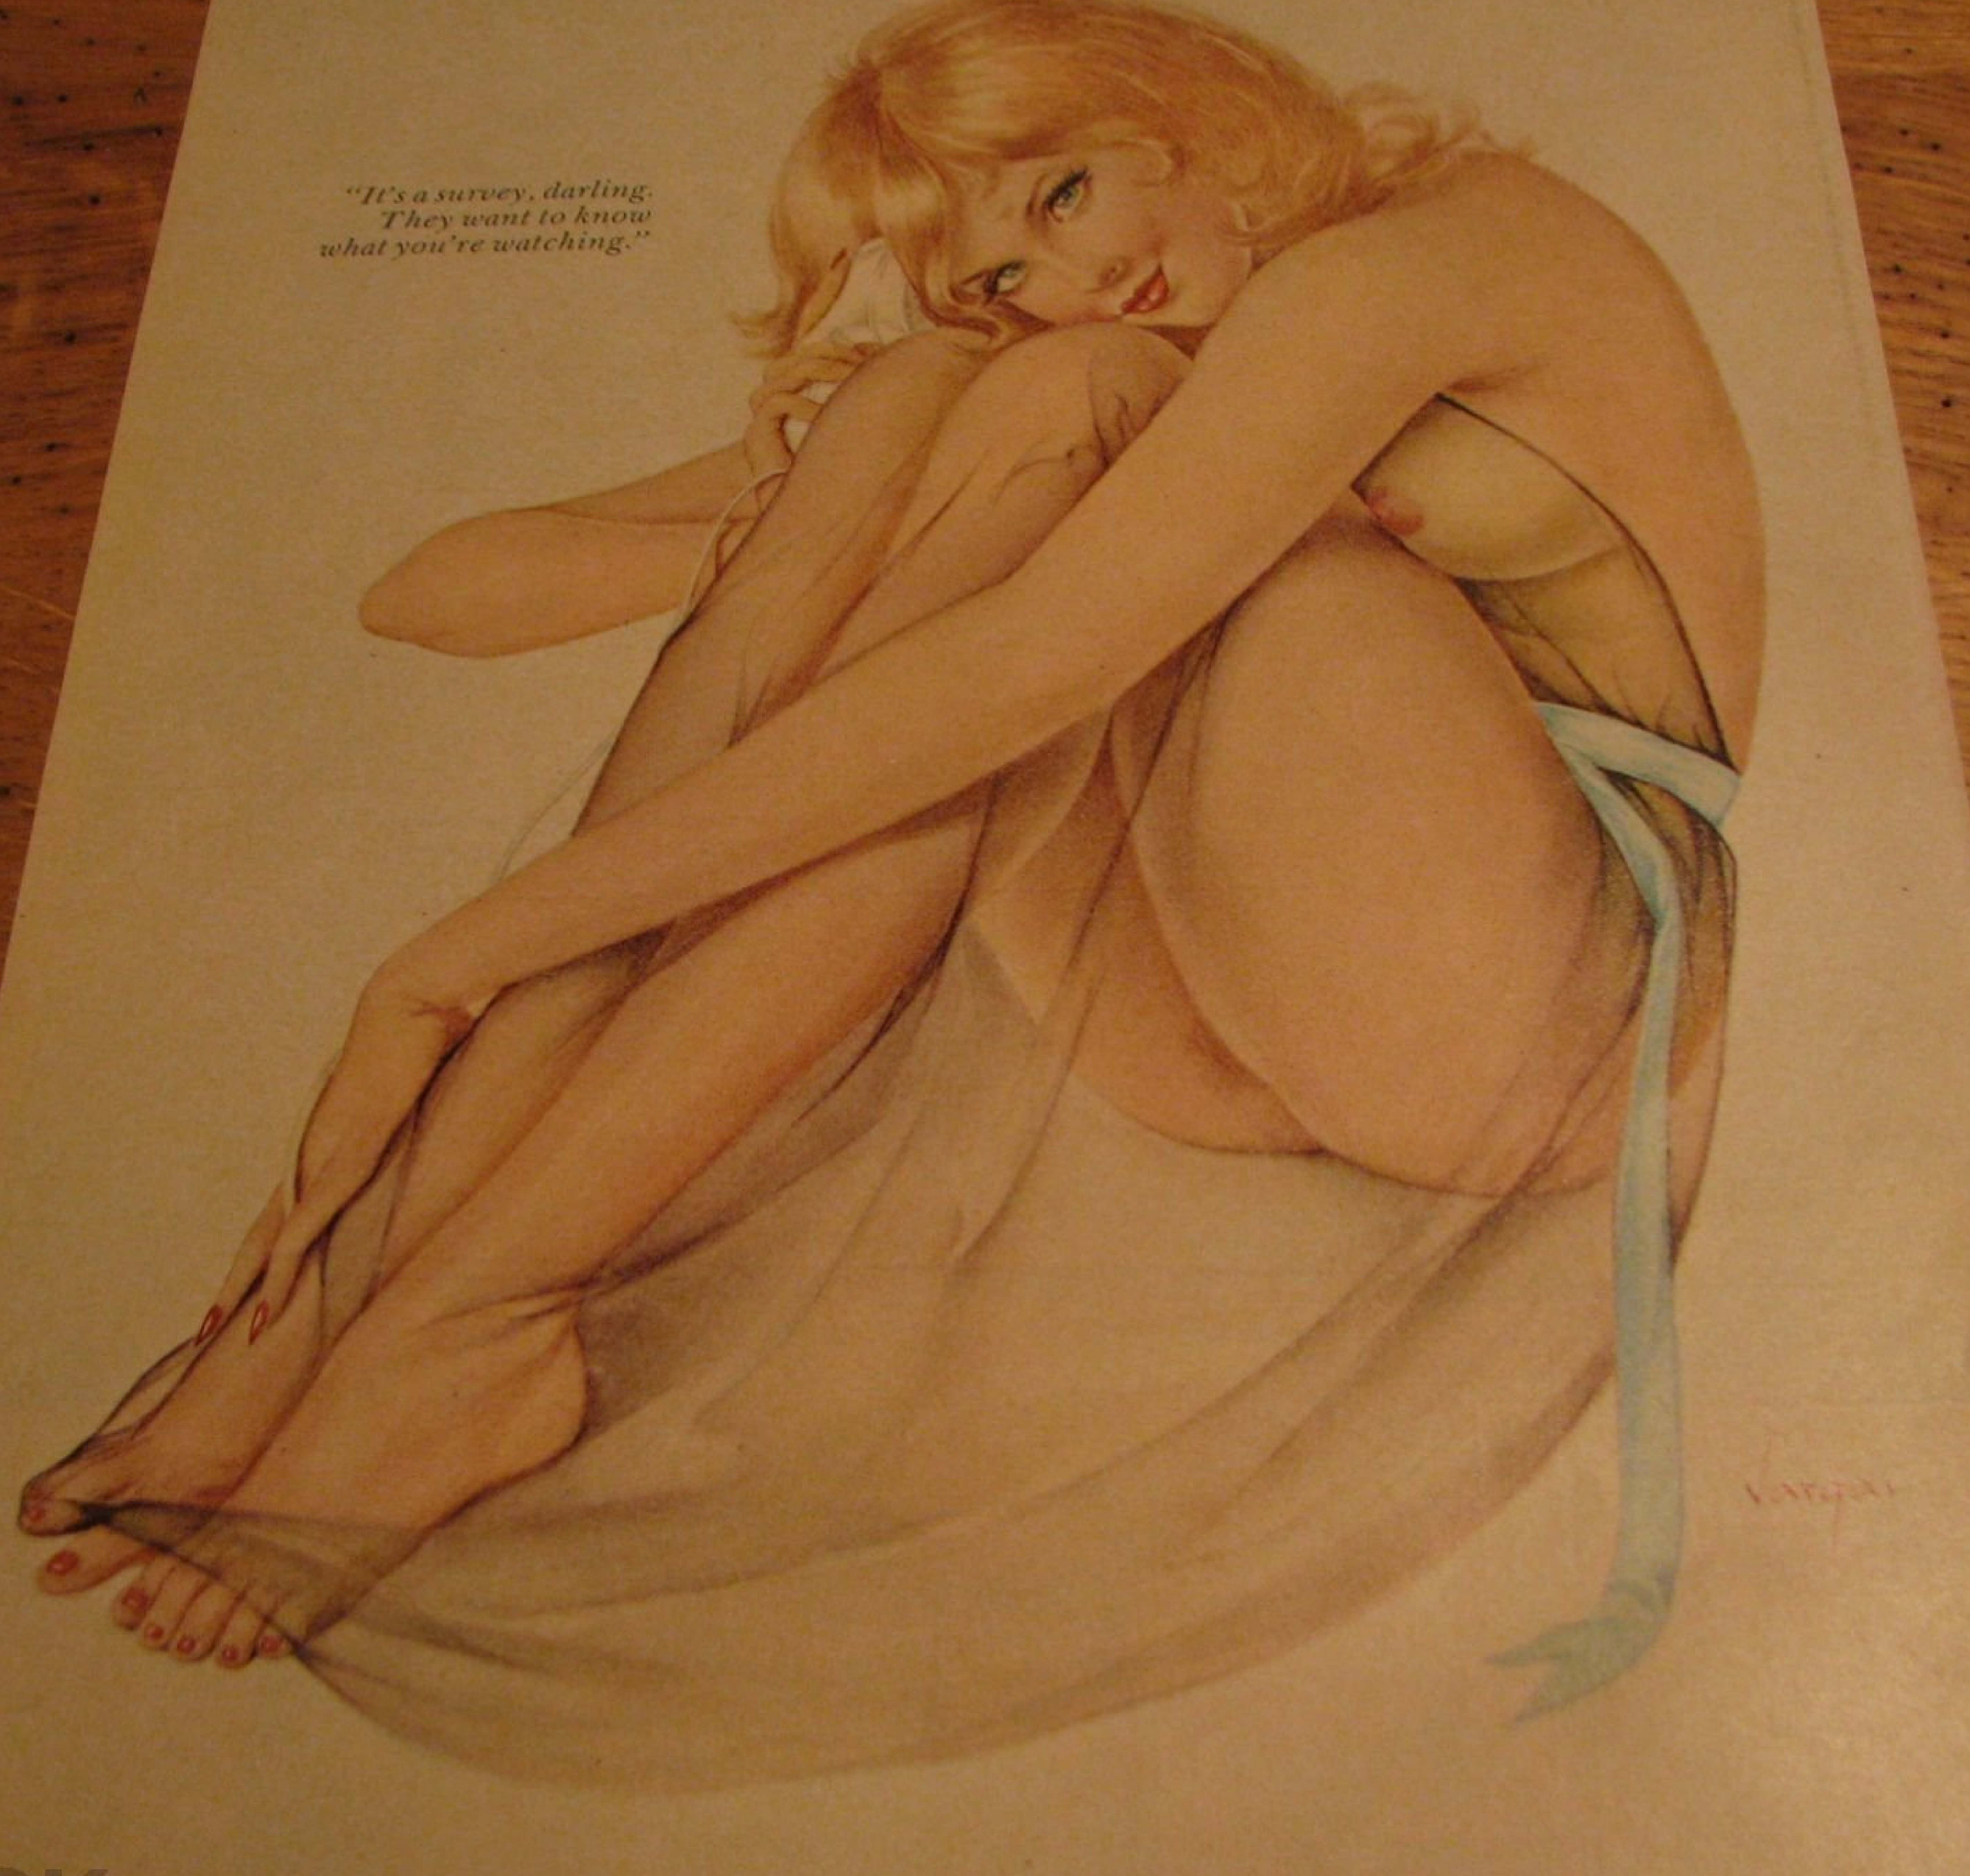
Green777

"Well, you've finally convinced me, Mr. Wyngate. I'm ready to throw in the towel."

Green777

THE VARGAS GIRL

"It's a survey, darling. They want to know what you're watching."



Green777

"Trick or treat?"

Green777